What is a Classical Christian Education?

Before the mid-eighteenth century, Christian education was the purpose of nearly all Western education. This was based, in part, on Ephesians 6 which commands fathers to raise their children in “the nurture and admonition of the Lord.” This type of education seeks an inner transformation of the student. It cultivates the students’ habits of thought and action in order to view the world with certain foundational truths and thereby align their desires with God’s ideal. Classical Christian education’s objective then is to shape their virtues and reason so that they will be in line with God’s will. In other words, our objective is to cultivate a Christian paideia (education) in students.
